

Question: What is your attitude toward Macbeth? Do you feel admiration, sympathy, disgust, or something else entirely? Discuss your attitudes with references to the play and your own experiences.

The last time I ordered Chinese food, I was a lot like Macbeth. I started out really hungry for something and I just wanted to stuff my face with it. My food was delivered, I paid for it and I went to the kitchen to eat it. My downfall occurred when I spent the next forty-five minutes in the bathroom with an upset stomach. I had a goal, realized it, and regretted it afterwards. In this instance, I was similar to Macbeth. Macbeth's story is one I feel disgusted by. He may have achieved his goals, but in the end, regretted his decision in the same way I regretted my decision to eat so much Chinese food. The only difference was that I didn't have to kill anyone to get my wontons.
